DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's amendment dated 02/21/2006 has been received and entered. By the amendment, claims 43-78 and newly added claims 79-102 are now pending in the application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 43-102 are rejected under 35 U.S.C 102(b) as being anticipated by Applicant's submitted prior art, Yamada et al., JP 6-118426.

The above claims are anticipated by Yamada et al. figures 1-2, 5 and accompanying text which disclose a liquid crystal display device comprising:

- . a first substrate (lower substrate 10) and a second substrate (upper substrate 20);
- . a thin film transistor (13);
- . a liquid crystal layer (30) driven by parallel field (applying electric field to electrode 14 and 15), so as to control light passes through the liquid crystal layer;
- . a transparent conductive material (22) formed over the second substrate;
- . a black matrix (21) as claimed.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed 02/21/2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant's only argument is that Yamada does not describe or suggest an arrangement in which an electric field applied in parallel with a surface of the first substrate controls whether light passes through the liquid crystal display device or not since Yamada is directed to a TN type LCD device and the electric field creates regions having different tilts within a pixel, does not control whether a light passes through the LCD device or not (amendment, page 13). The Examiner is not convinced by this argument since the same is true of the Yamada et al. electric field. In particular, the examiner agrees that the Yamada et al device is a TN type LCD device; however, when applying an electric field, liquid crystal molecules would be aligned by different tilts, so as to control light passed through the liquid crystal layer. In other words, the Yamada et al. parallel field would have the same function as control light through a liquid crystal layer as well.

Accordingly, the limitation of the above claims met.

Conclusion

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO

Art Unit: 2871

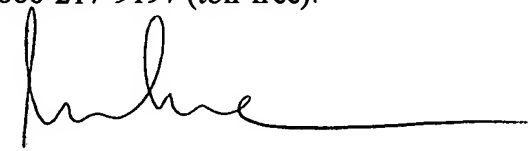

MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
